

Abstract:

A threaded attachment provides means of applying external threads to tubes, rods, cables, and the like. The threaded attachment can be expanded to install around a tube, rod, cable or the like. When the threaded attachment is compressed or closed around the tube, rod, cable or the like, an adhesive liner on the inside surface of the threaded attachment bonds the threaded attachment concentrically to the tube, rod, cable or the like.